A word from the head ...

Today, I wanted to bring your attention to the Ealing SEND Family Activity Guide. This is an online guide which brings together places that you can visit as a family. The guide also shares organisations that operate SEND sessions at their venue on selected dates and times. Typically these sessions tend to have reduced capacity and not open to the general public.

The booklet also includes information about autism friendly screening, theatre, zoos, museums, waterpark, outdoor playgrounds and gardens, trampoline park, indoor play, venues with discounts and concessions.

It has information about Merlin, a ride access pass that's designed for people with additional needs who would have difficulty queuing. Moreover, there is information on schemes and aids to help families access leisure activities such as the hidden disability scheme.

Special Educational Needs and Disabilities Services are also outlined and have been a good source of support for our families.

I really think it is a comprehensive and useful guide for families to enjoy.
