A word from the head..

Phonics at Mandeville

On the website this week I want to highlight a series of videos filmed in the summer 2023. They demonstrate our teaching approach to phonics, the importance of building a relationship based on trust and respect and challenging children in their learning. A lovely group of children having so much fun in their learning.

We will always respond to the children's needs, phonics can also be represented through rhythm and movement and building on interactive sound through approaches such as intensive interaction.

Take a look at the PowerPoint presentation to steer you through the seven aspects of phase 1 from environmental sounds to voice sounds and blending.
